

ISO:9001 is the international standard for Quality Management Systems. The standard requires that a company has a documented method of operation covering all aspects of its business, and that it can demonstrate that the procedures have been followed.

N.A.Software received ISO:9001 certification in 1997 under NQA and is now certified to ISO 9001:2015. The scope of the Company's certification is as follows:

Design, development and consultancy for scientific and commercial software together with associated support.

As required by the standard, we have qualified auditors on the staff who monitor and review the operation of the quality system in order to maintain compliance with ISO:9001 and to further improve and develop the quality procedures.

Companies who are considering placing business who want further information on any aspect of the quality system may contact the Quality Manager (quality@nasoftware.co.uk).